Mix a Recipe

Have your child help you cook or bake something! Have them help measure the ingredients and mix the ingredients together. Talk about the temperature you are using and when you're finished, count how many items your recipe made.

What this is teaching:

a) Your child can see that different size scoops hold different amounts of material.
b) Your child can see the differences between the various ingredients in the recipe.
c) Your child can see that combining ingredients makes something different from what each item looks like individually.
d) Your child learns that some things can be done quickly and some things take more time.
